To our loyal fans, retailers and strategic partners around the world,

I first met Matt Greenfield in Houston in August of 1992. Both of us were working for businesses that dabbled in renting and selling anime laserdiscs at a time when the American market for Japanese animation was almost nonexistent. As we talked, we discovered we had almost identical visions of what anime could and should be here in the states. We both knew the real future of the industry was in licensing titles from Japan and distributing them to American audiences. Since our respective skills and backgrounds complimented each other's perfectly, we knew we were the right guys in the right place and at the right time to create something special. Fifteen days after that first meeting, A.D.Vision was born, and Matt and I started production on our first licensed anime title, Devil Hunter Yohko.

Now, here we are ten years later, and ADV has not only survived, but we've grown into the number one distributor of anime in North America. We've handled some of the greatest anime titles ever produced, like Neon Genesis Evangelion, Bubblegum Crisis: Tokyo 2040, and Robotech, just to name a few. We've branched out to include popular live action science-fiction titles such as Gamera: Guardian of the Universe and SCI FI Channel's Saturn Award-winning series, Farscape. In 2000, we co-produced our first original feature, SIN, and followed that up a year later with our first animated theatrical film—the jaw-dropping action spectacular, Spriggan.

As good as the first decade has been, the next is shaping up to be even better. We're kick-starting things in 2002 with our ten-year anniversary celebration by releasing our most requested classic titles such as Golden Boy, Plastic Little, and the title that started it all, Devil Hunter Yohko, for the first time ever on DVD. We're also releasing some new and exciting titles like Excel Saga, Steel Angel Kurumi, and television's top rated syndicated series, Gene Roddenberry's Andromeda.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the fans out there that have supported ADV Films over the past decade. If not for you spreading the word about us through fan clubs, web sites, on college campuses and in the video and record stores all over America, I think it's safe to say ADV Films would probably not exist today. It's your support and fellowship that keeps us going.

Here's to ten more years.

LOST UNIVERSE

From the creator of Slayers comes a wild action series set in a mysterious galaxy where independent trouble contractors ply their trade amid the stars. Kane Blueriver, the bearer of the Psi-blade, master of the Lost Ship Sword-Breaker, and his lovely associates Millie Nocturne (a former hot shot private eye with a bad habit of blowing up the kitchen) and Canal (the saucy holographic image of his ship's master computer) are ready and able to take on any dirty job that will keep the bill collectors at bay.

MARTIAN SUCCESSOR NADESICO

Aliens from Jupiter have declared war on Earth, destroying a Mars base and wiping out a fleet of spaceships. With mankind hovering on the brink of extinction, only one ship and its fearless crew stand a chance of saving us all...the Nadesico! But if our only hopes for survival rest with a crew containing a love struck captain, a reluctant pilot who'd rather be a cook than a hero, an anime addict who's losing his grip on reality, and more misfits and oddballs than you can shake a straitjacket at, we might be better off with the aliens after all! This comic science fiction caper was voted "The Best Anime Show of All Time" by a 1998 Animage Japanese animation Fan Survey.
